9) Today's news is filled with many sad and negative things happening in the world. But guess what. There are many, many wonderful, awesome, and incredible things going on in the world. We need to remind ourselves of all the good things that are happening. For example, every day, millions of people are reaching out to help others. Millions of people are acting courageously. Millions of people are contributing to the world in positive and wholesome ways. Hopefully, you're one of them! So next time you feel overwhelmed by all the negative news, remember these words from American writer Silas Bent:

Harmony seldom makes the headlines.

Today will be a great day if you choose to make it one!! Have a great day cubs!!!
